In any such event the form of participation must be mentioned in the minutes of the meeting. Although the law provides this option only for the Supervisory Board meetings, there are no obvious reasons not to extend these provisions also to the meetings of the Management Board. As of 22 March 2020 the minutes of the Supervisory Board and Management Board meetings can be signed only by the Chairman and at least one other participant of the	Baltic Institute of Corporate Governance invites all members to vote at the Annual General Meeting, which will be held on the 30th of April. Taking into account the Resolution No. 207 by the Government of Lithuania, which foresees a quarantine period in Lithuania until the 13th of April with a possibility of a further extension, the Association informs that the Meeting will take place, but members of the Association shall participate in the Meeting through voting in advance by submitting voting ballots. ----- Latvia : Recent amendments to the Commercial Law allow shareholders to participate in a General Meeting via electronic means or to vote prior to

All such votes must be received by the Management Board no later than one day ahead of the meeting or otherwise will be deemed void. All shareholders rendering their votes in writing prior to the meeting must be identified. For this reason we advise confirming the vote in writing either upon a secure electronic signature or in the presence of a notary. If a shareholder represents at least 20 percent of the share capital, he or she may also request the company to allow the shareholder participating in the General Meeting via electronic means of communication. In such event the company must ensure the requisite technical equipment that enables the shareholder to participate in discussions with other shareholders and the company's management, as well as ensures the recording of the meeting.
Belgium  Guberna		The Belgian government, under the auspices of Koen Geens, Deputy Prime Minister and Minister of Justice, relaxed the rules relating to the organisation of the annual general meeting (AGM) of companies and associations.

		The government provides three options for the organisation of the AGM that apply even if the articles of association do not allow them. <ol style="list-style-type: none"> <li>1. The governance body is given the power to decide that shareholders or members may only vote remotely, with the possibility to combine it with proxy voting, provided that only a person appointed by the governance body may act as proxy holder. This measure allows for a digital AGM to take place.</li> <li>2. The second option is to postpone the general meeting until the situation has returned to normal. This is also allowed when the meeting has already been convened, provided that the shareholders and members are correctly informed.</li> <li>3. The governance body may, in all circumstances, take a unanimous decision in writing. The governance body can also deliberate and decide (if necessary, by a majority) by means of an electronic communication allowing discussions. In case of decisions that have to be taken before a notary - in particular with regard to authorised capital - it is again sufficient for one member of the governance body or a person appointed by the governance body to meet physically with the notary. The other members can participate via electronic communication.</li> </ol> In sum, AGM's convened or to be convened before 19 April can take place entirely electronically or in writing on the scheduled date. In case the AGM is postponed, companies and associations are granted a ten-week delay after the deadline at which their AGM had to take

		place. Importantly, as from May 1, 2019 a new Code of Companies and Associations (i.e. WVV/CSA) is in force in Belgium. Many companies and associations will be adapting their articles of association to this new code by means of a so-called extraordinary AGM. In this case specific rules on presence and majority apply. How to proceed? When the purpose of the AGM is purely “technical” companies can be expected to opt for a fully digital AGM rather than to postpone until further notice. In order to have a valid AGM, the special presence and majority rules still apply, meaning 50% participation and 75% in favour of all votes expressed. However, opting for a fully digital AGM might make it easier to meet the 50% participation threshold as of the first date of meeting. Guberna was the first in line to organize its general meeting in a digital way. Denmark  Board Leadership Society of Denmark	The Danish government has prohibited meetings +10 persons including AGMs AGMs can still be held electronically (or by proxy) provided that a physical AGM (of less than 10 person attending) is held at the same time.	Generally, if the company has already convened an ordinary general meeting, it will have to cancel it if the expected attendance will exceed 10 persons, thus violating the ban. Cancellation may occur right up to the day before the annual general meeting and must be notified in the same manner as the convening was announced, e.g. as a company announcement, on the website and by e-mail/letter to the shareholders who have

		requested it. If the annual general meeting is cancelled, it will be necessary to convene a new annual general meeting. As a rule, the new general meeting must be held in time for the approved annual report to be submitted to the Danish Business Authority before the expiry of the deadline laid down in the Danish Financial Statements Act, which is by the end of May (end of April for listed companies). However, in the wake of the Prime Minister's announcement, the Danish Business Authority has just announced new interim rules on extending the deadlines for submitting annual reports. The extension of the deadline means that companies with more than 10 owners may wait until no later than 8 weeks after the end of the ban on the gatherings of more than 10 persons. It is important to emphasise that only the companies with more than 10 owners are covered by the new temporary deadline. Companies that, in their statutes, have the option of holding an electronic general meeting, are not covered by the new deadline. Companies that are not covered by the new temporary deadline must, therefore, continue to hold an ordinary general meeting and submit annual reports before the general deadlines described above.

Finland Directors' Institute Finland		The Finnish listed companies' advisory board has encouraged companies to take a risk-based approach when evaluating whether to postpone the AGM and called for urgent legislative measures to facilitate remotely held general meetings. If a general meeting needs to be held while the restrictions on public meetings remain in force, companies should seek to minimize physical participants in accordance with the 10 person limitation and to take additional measures to minimize infection risk at the meeting. However, equal treatment of shareholders needs to be observed and the meeting should not be held in a way which prevents the ability of shareholders to participate in decision making. Form of the meeting : The Finnish Companies Act does not permit meetings fully held by video link (i.e. a strict online meeting). However, a hybrid meeting is possible. This means that a meeting is held with at least one shareholder physically present (in person or by proxy) and that other shareholders participate remotely e.g. through a video-link from other locations. The use of advance or remote voting and participation would generally need to be described in the AGM notice along with the requirements and possible limitations for such means of participation. Advance and proxy voting: The Finnish Companies Act permits advance voting and Euroclear Finland has an online solution for this, meaning that shareholders can submit their votes

		to the meeting without participating. This possibility would need to be described in the AGM notice. It is also possible to collect proxies/powers of attorney for the company or a third party in order to limit the need for shareholders to be physically present. The collection of proxies by the company should be done in a neutral manner so that the shareholders have equal opportunity to vote against board- and other proposals if they choose to, and without emphasizing one voting alternative above the other. Cancellation and postponing: The board can decide to cancel an already published AGM notice and either delay the convening of the AGM or issue a new AGM notice with appropriate information. In such cases the statutory notice period for convening the new meeting needs to be observed. Cancellation of the AGM should be communicated in the same manner as convening the AGM under the articles of association, and through a stock exchange release.

Netherlands NCD Academy	There is no general statutory requirement for the board of a Dutch company to meet at specific intervals. As such, board meetings can be postponed or cancelled in view of the COVID-19 related travel restrictions. In certain cases, however, board decisions cannot be postponed. There are a number of arrangements the board can make to mitigate the effects of travel restrictions and other safety measures related to COVID-19: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• Board meetings can generally be held using electronic means of communication, provided all participating board members can communicate with each other in real time (i.e. Skype or a conference call).</li> <li>• It is possible for a board member to grant a proxy to another board member to represent him or her at a meeting, thereby limiting the number of participants.</li> <li>• Board resolutions can be adopted in writing, provided all board members are familiar with the resolutions to be passed and there are no objections to this means of decision-making.</li> </ul>	At least one general meeting of shareholders must be held annually. Until 6 April 2020 inclusive, gatherings are in principle not permitted. However, an AGM may nonetheless be held if there are no more than 100 people in attendance and a distance of at least 1.5 meters between attendees is maintained. Below are some additional points to consider when organising the AGM. Here are some focal points: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• Virtual AGM: A fully virtual AGM is not permitted under Dutch law.</li> <li>• Hybrid AGM: A hybrid AGM is possible, under certain conditions. For a BV, the AGM must take place within 12 months from the close of its financial year (unless the shareholders take a decision outside a meeting). Sweden The Swedish Academy of Board Directors		All companies must convene general meetings within 6 months from the end of their financial year and approve their annual report. However, larger companies must consider implications of restrictions on number of people convening in one place.

		Form of meeting: The Swedish Companies Act does not permit meetings fully held by video link (i.e. a strict online meeting). However, what is called a hybrid meeting is possible. This means that a meeting is held with at least one shareholder present and that other shareholders participate through video-link from other locations. Special considerations must be made regarding how to identify shareholders (i.e. how to determine that the video link participant is actually the shareholder). Such option of holding a hybrid meeting should also be possible for a meeting that has already been convened, provided that the ability to participate physically at the original venue for shareholders is not limited and that the arrangements around the distance participation are adequate. In addition, it should also be noted that the Swedish Companies Act permits postal voting, meaning that shareholders can submit their votes to the meeting without participating, as well as collection of powers of attorney. Provided that such possibilities are provided for in the articles, companies can inform, encourage and facilitate such. Thus, companies which already have published notices to their AGMs, without instructions on participation by postal voting or collection of powers of attorney cannot use such means at the AGMs. In addition, a board can always decide to cancel the published notice and issue a new with appropriate information, but must in such cases

Switzerland  The Swiss Institute of Directors	The Swiss Government declared National Emergency which puts all the existing regulation in question	In order to enable Swiss companies to hold their general meetings despite the current restrictions, the Amended COVID-19 Ordinance authorizes the holding of general meetings in writing, in electronic form, or by an independent proxy designated by the company. For Swiss companies this means: General meetings with physical presence are banned until 19 April 2020. Companies which already issued their invitations to general meetings to be held on a date before or on 19 April 2020 must either postpone the general meeting or, because no physical meeting can be held, inform the shareholders on how they can exercise their voting rights. If the general meeting is not postponed, the company must notify its shareholders in writing or electronically (for example on the company's website) on how they can exercise their voting rights at the latest four days before the date of the general meeting. The company must implement respective measures so that the shareholders can exercise their voting rights. Currently, the ban is in force until 19 April 2020, but could be extended. Hence, if general meetings are scheduled to fall after 19 April 2020, they may still be planned as meetings with physical presence but, to be on the safe side, companies should also plan on the basis of an ongoing ban. This means that the date of the general meeting should not be before 24 April 2020, so that there is sufficient time (at least four days) after 19 April 2020 and the date of the general meeting to allow the company for the election, implementation and communication on how the shareholders can exercise their voting rights. Roche held an AGM on week 12 with only BoD, CEO and a shareholder representatives present (not be acceptable in normal times)

UK  Institute of Directors		There does not appear to be a legal obstacle in the UK to holding a virtual AGM as long as it is permitted by the organisation's constitutional documents. However, the most practical option in the first instance is likely to be delaying the AGM as far out as is possible, subject to meeting statutory deadlines. It should be possible in the UK, following enactment of Companies Act 2006 provisions which allow entirely electronic general meetings if allowed by the articles. Available options for UK-listed companies to consider as part of their AGM contingency planning were discussed in initial guidance published by the Institute of Chartered Administrators and Secretaries (ICSA) on March 17, 2020. In light of the compulsory Stay at Home measures now implemented in the UK, which include a ban on public gatherings of more than two persons, ICSA published supplementary guidance for UK-listed companies (Guidance) on March 27 2020.

		In addition, on March 28, 2020 the Business Secretary announced that legislation is to be introduced to allow companies to hold their AGMs safely, consistent with the current restrictions on movement and gatherings. Under this, companies will temporarily be extended greater flexibilities, including holding AGMs online or postponing AGMs. <ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>- Under the Companies Act, a public company's AGM must be held within six months of its financial year-end. Those with December year-ends that typically hold their AGMs in April or May can consider delaying until June to take full advantage of the six month period in the hope that COVID-19 impacts will be diminished by then. Those with March year-ends will have more time to see how matters develop.</li> </ul> ----- The Companies House is now granting a two months extension to file company accounts where accounts cannot be filed on time due to a company being affected by Covid-19.

Armenia	The Armenian parliament drafted a new package of legislation that allows to conduct remote AGMs and voting through electronic means. The bill now is on the parliament's floor and is being discussed as an emergency reform legislation. We foresee that it will be adopted in the coming days. Under Armenian legislation, the decision of holding a shareholders' meeting is adopted by the board. Nevertheless, board meetings cannot be held through distance voting or electronic communication. Under these circumstances, especially in the context of fighting COVID-19, the situation wherein shareholders' meetings will be allowed to be held remotely but board meetings will continue to be exclusively physical seems illogical. For that reason, the Drafts suggests establishing distance and electronic voting regimes for board meetings similar to those which are suggested for shareholders' meetings	Under the Draft, it is suggested to eliminate the mentioned prohibition. In particular, if the Draft passes into law, joint-stock companies (including banks and insurance companies) will be allowed to hold annual meetings on a virtual platform and vote with electronic ballots.
